Dear Hiring Manager,

I am excited to apply for the Full Stack Developer position at Your Company. With more than four years of experience building scalable, secure, and user-focused web and mobile applications, I bring a blend of technical expertise and practical results that align with today's fast-paced software development environment.

In my current role with Brainvire Infotech Inc. (USA), I deliver full-stack features using Java (Spring Boot), Angular/TypeScript, Kotlin, and PostgreSQL. Notably, I optimized backend APIs to reduce response times by 35% under peak loads and implemented CI/CD pipelines with Docker and Jenkins, cutting deployment overhead by 40%. I also integrated Stripe payments and real-time Firebase notifications, which improved user engagement and reduced cart abandonment by 18%.

Previously at Capgemini, I led the development of SmartHealth Tracker, a cross-platform health application combining React.js, Swift/SwiftUI, Node.js, and MongoDB. By optimizing microservices and integrating Apple HealthKit, I achieved 95% synchronization accuracy and drove a 90% retention rate during its initial rollout. These experiences demonstrate my ability to deliver high-quality digital solutions that improve both performance and user satisfaction. Currently, I am pursuing a Master of Science in Computer Science at Auburn University at Montgomery. This academic foundation, combined with my industry experience and authorization to work in the U.S. under OPT, positions me to contribute immediately to your team's success.

I am particularly drawn to Your Company because of its commitment. I am confident my background in full-stack development, cloud-native solutions, and cross-platform mobile engineering would allow me to add value from day one.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to contribute and would be glad to discuss how my experience aligns with your organization's goals.

Regards,
Praju Kumar
